President Hayes at Harvard. SPEECHES BY THE PRESIDENT AND SEC-

RETARIES KEY AND SCHURZ. President Hayes and the members of his party attend i Harvard College yesterday, and were enthusiastically received. At the alumni dinner, which the party also at-tended, some very happy speeches were made. President Eliot introduced President Hayes.

THE PRESIDENT'S REMARKS. Mr. Hayes arose with apparent diffidence, standing for some moments before commencstanding for some moments before commencing to speak. The association favored him with nine vigorous "rahs," waved their handkerchiefs at him, and in many other ways expressed their enthusiasm and respect for him. He blushed like a boy, and evidently was laboring under intense emotion. When he had obtained sufficient control over his faculties to enable him to produce the second control over his faculties to enable him to produce the second control over his faculties to enable him to produce the second control over his faculties to enable him to produce the second control over his faculties to enable him to produce the second control over his faculties to enable him to produce the second control over his faculties to enable him to produce the second control over his faculties to enable him to produce the second control over his faculties to enable him to produce the second control over his faculties to enable him to produce the second control of the second control over his faculties to enable the second control over his fa trol over his faculties to enable him to pro-ceed, he said slowly and with evident diffi-"Graduates of Harvard University-This

I assure you that I have a very grateful appreciation of this hear y greeting. I know how little it is deserved. God grant that during the remainder of my term I may be able to do some-thing to deserve it.' [Deafening applause.] Gov. Rice and the historian Bancroft made brie: speeches, after which Gen. [Cheers.] My friends, I feel that we have now only one country. There is no North and South; we are one and undivided; one and insepara-

This sentiment provoked a revival of applause, which was not silenced for some SPEECH OF CARL SCHURZ.

The next speaker was Carl Schurz, who was presented to the audience as a graduate of Bohn in a neat speech by Gen. Devens.
"Mr. President and gentlemen," said Mr. Schurz, "there is no more comfortable and pleasant institution among men than a good, well-regulated admiration society. [Linghter.] I was forcibly reminded of that fact when I listened to the introduction which my friend, the Attorney General, has honor i me. Let me assure you that members of the present cabinet always speak pleasantly of one another, [laughter,] and in this respect we are the healthiest and happiest family that ever existed. The good things said of me by the Attorney General I ought to say of him, with the exception of one. He did not graduate at Bonn, but at the University of Harvard. Last year I was distinguished by the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws, and I am p oud to say that although the President of the United States outranks me in public life, I am, on account of the presentation of that degree, lifted a peg ahead of him in one direction at least Perhaps you expect me to indulge in a profound disinstance, in relation to the principles of internal law, or something of that sort, which t would puzzle the professional lawyer in this wide land. I think I shall touch politics but gently. You have heard of the scholar in politics. It is one of those things which has been discussed very extensively of late, and justly so, for we have arrived at a pericd in our history where we are confronted by a multitude of problems which demand of public men not only correct sentiment, but a thorough knowledge of the things they have to deal with. [Applause.] And also that intellectual honesty which is not afraid to draw conclusions from sound reasoning upon sound premises, and although at the time these conclusions may appear somewhat unpopular. This to me is what, at this time, is needed, and therefore the presence and activity of the scholar in politics is not only desired, but it is actually necessary. The members of the present administration sympathize with the scholars in politics, as you may have seen from a recent letter in the newspapers in which the President of the United States tells the heads of the department that he wants the officers of this government to mind their official duties [ap-plause] and not to try to control party politics. Do you know what that means? Undoubtedly you heard of Gladstone's efforts to dise tablish the Irish Church. This means disestab lishment of the machine in party politics. [Cries of "Good" and applause.] It means that every one shall be told to go to the caucas or convention without feeling himself helpless at the door, knowing that things have been fixed by the postmaster and the custom-house. [Applause.] It means that there shall be a road open to free thought and to elevated sentiment in the pursuit of great public objects. Secretary Schurz was followed by Profes sor Lowell, Senator Bayard, Joseph F. Choate and P. Bishop Lee, the occasion being brought to a close by singing "Auld Lang Syne." The President and party had in the meartime withdrawn and returned to Boston to be present at THE BANQUET GIVEN BY THE CITY OF

A DIAZ VICTORY IN MEXICO .- Acapulco, Mexico, which was recently captured by the Lerdists, capitulated to the Diaz naval forces on the 16th, after ten days' bombardment by the gunboats, Gen. Alvarez surrendering the fort, with 250 men. "Amicable relations" are now said to exist between the two forces soldiers of both sides carousing through the streets arm in arm. It is hinted that Alvarez has gone over to the Diaz party. THE CONTROL IN THE EAST. Careless Russian Shoeting.

LONDON, June 28 .- The Times in its leading article says the neutral states are painfully interested by reports that the Russians have been violating the laws of war by the infliction of wanton injury. If they deliberately directed their guns against the consulates and defenceless parts of Rustchuk, their guilt is surpassed only by their folly, and that folly would be all the more glaring because of the control of the con cause, if as reported, they continued to fire on the English consulate, after the consulate hoisted the American flag, they would have gone out of their way to assail the power peculiarly friendly to themselves. It is difficult to believe the Russians would have deliberately inflicted such an outrage, and it is well to remember that similar charges invariably accompany every bombardment.

After dwelling upon the reasons for and the purposes of the foundation of Amherst college, he said: "I take the work assigned me in the spirit and with the aims I have thus endea-vored to express. Far distant be the day when one entrusted with the interests of this institution in any degree should set before him any other than the lofty aim which has prevailed in the history of Amherst college from its beginning to the present time. To Jesus Christ, Son of God, the Saviour, the college was originally dedicated, and to Him be it now again presented in the new consecration, ever living and all embracing." PRESIDENT HAYES.

His Visit to Rhode Island.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 28.—President
Hayes and party left Boston at 8 o'clock this morning for Providence in a special train on the Boston and Providence railroad.

At Mansfield the train was met by a committee of the Rhode Island legislature, Hon.
P. A. Tillinghast, chairman; U.S. Marshal
Coggethall and Senator H. B. Anthony. After introductions and exchange of greetings, Mr. Tillinghast addressed President Hayes, welcoming him to the land of Roger Wilwelcoming him to the land of Roger Wil-

The President, in response, simply ex-pressed thanks to the state of Rhode Island for the cordial reception tendered him. The gaily decked train proceeded to Providence, slowing at At leboro', where at the state line a salute of twenty-one guns was fired. The President appeared on the platform, but the train did not stop. When the train arrived at the station in Providence, the President's salute was fired as the train ran into the depot. As the President alighted he was immediately escorted to a carriage in the mili-tary line, already formed and waiting his arrival. The line was under command of Major General Burnside, and composed of 1 200 veteran soldiers of Rhode Island, with the First Light Infantry Regiment, Colonel Goodard, as an escort. The column escorting the President then moved from Ex-change Place to the executive mansion. The morning was delightful, flags were displayed in every direction, and the streets on the route of march were profusely decorated with bunting. The population turned out en masse, and the throng which made the sidewalks impassable during the passage of the President's carriage, was largely swelled from the surrounding towns and neighboring states, and the kindliest spirit prevailed. Every military organization of the 20th, that left the state during the war was represented in the line of vectors it but there. in the line of veterans that turn dout to welcome their President and comrade, and the resident soldiers of other states were in full force. The str!king uniforms of light infantry added brilliancy to the pageant, and altogether the procession and gathering was such as Providence has never before seen. At the executive mansion the President alighted and was met by Gov. Van Zandt, who addressed him in words of welcome, to PRESIDENT HAYES RESPONDED AS FOL-

Governor: All the people of the United States know something of the little state of Rhode Island; something of its past; something of what it is. I am sure you will understand me when I say that this welcome and this reception are very gratifying to me; not that I understand it to be on personal accounts, but because Rhode Island believes. as I do, in one of the great sentiments of New England's great statesman and orator. England's great statesman and orator, which I was reminded of at the ancient town of Attleboro'. An old citizens of that town handed me a note, in which he said the reason the people of Attleboro turned out to give me a hearty greeeting was that the people believed in the sentiment. I have alluded to a sentiment of Webster, which I am sure you agree with, and ster, which I am sure you agree with, and one that the government of the United States should not forget, should always reone constitution, one destiny."

After a brief tarry at the executive mansion, the President was taken in charge by the committee of veteran associations and proceeded to the steamer City of Newport, specially chartered for his accommodation. and at 11:30 o'clock embarked for Rocky Point, 12 miles down the bay, where many thousands of people-veteran soldiers and citizens-were waiting to greet him. He was accompanied by Governor Van Zandt, Senator Anthony, state officers, and nearly all the members of the general assembly. All the boats for Rocky Point have been crowded at each trip, that being the point of interest

Various propositions were received for the construction of a road by different routes through Missouri and Kansas, and a long discussion ensued. There are several distinct interests n the convention, each of which advocates a different route and has a different plan of construction. No progress was made in harmonizing these various interests, but some proposition may be presented to-day which will meet the views of a majority of the con-

HEARING IN THE CASE OF DEPUTY

FRANKS.

Yesterday a ernoon the case of Joshua A. Franks, charged with defrauding the gov-

H. Wells, H. H. Wells, jr., and Col. Lusk, U. S. district attorney for the western district of North Carolina, appeared for the prosecution, and Gen. S. S. Henkie and ex-Senator Pool for the defence.

Mr. Payne examined the abstracts and found several erasures on the original.

there was quite a number of people present, when the trial was resumed. Mr. Rogers was called for the defeace and testified that Franks was not an educated man; thinks it was in March when Franks went to arrest Ledford, an attempt having been made previously. Ledford fived over forty miles from witness. Franks filed an affidavit charging Ledford with illicit distilling, and witness issued the warrant, dated January 22th. Witness went with Franks and others to Clay county to arrest illicit

The covernment here objected, and an artument ensued, in which the government claimed that the warrant for the arrest of Ledford was not in evidence, and that in this case Ledford was not arrested, nor had his case ever been called, but charge was made for the same. The defence urged that they had a right to pursue this examination, and they would show, if allowed, that Franks was the victim of a conspiracy

Witness was at length allowed to proceed. He could not say that he issued more than one warrant. Mr. Jarett's son gave witness information as to the cases of the Ledford's and early in March when they went to Clay county they failed to arrest Ledford. Witness thought that Franks had the warrant for Thomas Ledford, because he had issued the warrant and did not think that Franks was without the writs. Did not see the papers; saw Franks and others gallop their horses and surround Ledford's house. Mr. Eastman was with the party at that time and witness understood that he was with the marshal as a guard. Witness could not swear that the endorsements on the warrant were in Franks handwriting, but they reembled his writing. The case was on trial when our report

The New Unitarian Church. LAYING THE CORNER STONE OF ALL

The ceremony of laying the corner stone of

All Souls' Church, (Unitarian,) by the Grand Ledge of Masons of the District of Columbia took place last evening. Notwithstanding the threatening appearance of the weather a large crowd assembled at the site, corner of 14th and L streets, long before the hour ap-pointed for the arrival of the Masonic procession. On account of the rain there was a delay in the commencement of the exercises from 6,30 to 7 o'clock. The Grand Lodge ac-cepted the invitation of the trustees of the church some days ago to perform the cere-monies, and arrangements were made by the several Commanderies of Knights Tem-plar to join in an escort to the Most Worship ful Grand Lodge, but the threatening appearance of the weather deterred many from turning out in regalia. Only two Commanderies were represent d-Columbia, No. 2, and De Molay, No. 4. A temporary wood floor was prepared at the place select 1 for the corner stone, at the northeast portion of the foundation wall, and at the east side a platform was constructed, and between this and the west front were arranged seats, which were filled with spectators, among whom were many members of the church and promment citizens, and in the rear of the seats every foot of standing room was occupied. The Grand Lodge, with their Templar es-cort, arriv I about seven o'clock, and at once proceeded to the floor, near where the once proceeded to the floor, near where the corner stone had been prepared.
